Joan Hinsdale Crowned Miss Pocono Mountains

Miss Joan Evelyn Hinsdale, a sophomore at East Stroudsburg State College, is the reigning Miss Pocono Mountains. She was crowned at the climax of a day of judging at the pageant held Saturday night at the college auditorium.

Brown-eyed, brown-haired Miss Hinsdale, a resident of Philadelphia, was runner-up in last year's contest. She won this year with a dramatic skit.

In addition to her crown she was awarded $200 in scholarships, the right to participate in the Miss Pennsylvania Contest in June, and an evening gown by David Gothe to wear in the contest as well as numerous other gifts. They included red roses, presented by Mrs. Dorothy Storms for the Business and Professional Women's Club which sponsored the pageant.

Second place winner was Miss Marilyn Luff, a freshman at East Stroudsburg State College,

Partisan Turkish Groups Stage New Free-For-All

IZMIR, Turkey (AP) — Supporters of Turkey's two rival political parties staged a free-for-all in the streets of Izmir Sunday just after Prime Minister Adnan Menderes promised a national election if the nation stays calm.

Socialists Make Gains On Adenauer

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — Socialist gains cut the strength of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democrats in a major state election Sunday.

The Christian Democrats retained their majority in Baden-Wuerttemberg, West Germany's third largest state, but the Socialists were the only party to emerge from the poll with added strength.

Only a little more than three million of the five million eligible voters cast ballots.

Final unofficial returns gave the Christian Democrats 39.4 per cent of the popular vote and the Socialists 35.5 per cent. In the last state elections, it was 42.6 and 28.9 respectively.

The Christian Democrats lost more than 200,000 votes while the Socialists picked up more than 100,000.

Good Morning!

If you're sure you're right, let the other fellow find it out at his leisure.

who also won the title of Miss Congeniality by the vote of her fellow contestants. She won $100 in scholarships for each title. Blonde Miss Luff is a native of Davisville and sang for her talent selection.

Tie For Third

Third place honors were shared by Carole J. Stahler of Bowmanstown, who did the Charleston, and Marjorie Tarkett of Hawley, who gave a three minute talk on nursing. They will share the $100 scholarship for their third place tie.

Judges at the pageant on Saturday night for talent and evening gown competition were Robert K. Christenberry, postmaster of New York City; Ted Berger, public relations and advertising executive from Allentown; and Mrs. Madelyn Maloney, writer and radio commentator of Stroudsburg.

The judging began for the contestants with the bathing suit competition following luncheon at Split Rock Lodge where they were guests. Pennsylvania Secretary of Commerce William Davlin served in the place of Christenberry for this judging.

The pageant last night was followed by a reception for the contestants and their families at High Point Inn.

Four Previous Dinners

Mrs. Robert A. Miller, director of the pageant, served as master of ceremonies at the sixth annual pageant when four of the previous Miss Pocono Mountains also entertained the group. Mrs. Connie Beers Pentz, who won the first title in 1955, sang; Mrs. Jean Poortstra Overac, 1957, presented a clown dance; and Mrs. Zoe Machamer Ridinger, 1958, played a violin solo.

Miss Carol Jean Willhoite, Miss Pocono Mountains of 1959, and third place winner and Miss Congeniality of the state contest, ended her reign with a piano solo, and by placing her crown on the head of the new queen.

Prospective Miss Poconos of the future, too young to enter this year, also entertained including Marcia Mink in a toe ballet; Gail Godshall in a violin solo, accompanied by Miss Mimi Mikels; Jean Evers in a dramatic reading; Liana Hope in a ballet number and Kathy Heller and Jimmy Williams in a dance routine.

Highlight of the entertainment were three professionals of The Trilliers, particularly Philip Cartwright, bass baritone, who presented "Songs from the Heart." Grace Thompson, mirimbi, and J. Richard Szeremany were also featured in solo numbers in the program which included classic, operatic and popular numbers from "The King and I."

Tests Sentiment

Menderes reached Izmir shortly after noon on a tour of Aegean provinces. The 61-year-old Premier, who has been in power 10 years, wants to test local sentiment about his strict policies curbing the opposition party.

He was dining at a restaurant some distance away when the shouting and slugging match broke out.

His conditional promise of new elections, made in an arrival speech, was his first public mention of voting since student anti-government riots broke out in Istanbul and Ankara April 28 and 29.

"We are determined to do away with these disturbances, and solve the problem at its roots with the people's will. Elections are the democratic way, the free way, the only way," he said.

Menderes did not specify an election date but he is bound by the Turkish constitution to call one by the spring of 1961.

Soviet Space Ship In Orbit

Big Rocket Has Dummy Astronaut

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's 4½-ton space ship, carrying a dummy astronaut and "the necessary equipment for future manned space flight," was reported cruising obediently along its chartered course around the earth Sunday.

Radio Moscow said the ship, hurled aloft by a "super-rocket," is sending back signals confirming "the good agreement between its actual orbit and the calculated one."

Largest Satellite

The feat-representing the biggest satellite ever hurled into space by man — was obviously timed to give Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev a boost for Monday's summit meeting in Paris.

The satellite went into orbit about 200 miles above the earth (225 miles at its highest, 188½ at its lowest). The Soviet news agency Tass said it was circling the earth every 91 minutes. All equipment was reported working perfectly.

Soviet scientists boasted the launching of the mammoth vehicle "once again demonstrates the Soviet Union's lead in space exploration."

Tass said the ship would be controlled from the earth but no attempt will be made to retrieve the "dummy spaceman."

"When the necessary information is received from the satellite," Tass added, "a pressurized cabin weighing some 2½ tons will be separated from it. In this case it is not planned to retrieve the pressurized cabin."

Burn As It Drops

It will burn up in the atmosphere as it drops.

Prof. Viktor Bazeikin, head of the Moscow Planetarium, told a reporter there that the next step in space flight would be an attempt to bring a pressurized cabin back by parachute without burning up.

He said the schedule for detaching the cabin on the Sputnik launched Sunday had not yet been worked out. As he spoke, the amplified whistling signal of the newest Soviet space rocket echoed through the Planetarium. Moscow radio said the space ship was visible to the naked eye — in hours of darkness — as it made its "flight through celestial space."

The station broadcast recorded beeps of the ship which sounded like a distant train whistle.

Extra Boost

Western suspicions that the Soviets needed an extra rocket boost to launch such a heavy satellite were confirmed by one broadcaster:

"Prof. Vladimir Dobronravov, a top Soviet space scientist, said the launching was closely linked with 'super-rocket test firings' into the Pacific by the Soviets in January."

At that time, Moscow said the tests were intended for "orbiting heavy earth satellites and space flights toward the planets of the solar system."

Temperatures

There, The Maryland primary will be held Tuesday.

Robert F. Kennedy, the senator's brother, predicted the senator will win the Maryland primary and the state's 24 nominating votes.

Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri meanwhile branded as "obviously absurd" what he said was a claim by Sen. Kennedy that the Oregon primary next Friday will be a test of strength between the two men.

Others Entered

Symington said the same is true of a Kennedy claim that the primary will test the value of former President Harry S. Truman's endorsement of Symington for the Democratic nomination.

Ike May Strike Bargain

Seeks Nuclear Test Ban

PARIS (AP)—President Eisenhower may strike a bargain with Premier Nikita Khrushchev this week for a nuclear test ban treaty. The President's decision could be one of the most momentous of his career.

May Halt West

It may halt the development of new or improved nuclear weapons in Western arsenals. And—in view of many Western scientists—it may leave the Soviet Union to continue its own nuclear weapons program in secret in the depths of the earth.

At the same time, the treaty would bring three advantages:

1. It would remove the health hazard of radioactive fallout from nuclear tests above ground.

2. It would install an unprecedented system of international control posts and mobile inspectors, however, restricted, in the Soviet Union.
3. It would set a precedent for East-West agreement on other and more far-reaching measures of disarmament.

Eisenhower is prepared to meet Khrushchev and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan on the sidelines of the summit conference to discuss the major obstacles in the Big Three test talks under way for 18 months at Geneva.

If these were resolved here, the Geneva negotiators could complete the treaty draft within a few weeks. A test ban might be ready for ratification by fall.

Eisenhower's decision will be determined by Khrushchev's attitude toward putting teeth into the draft treaty's complex system to prevent violations.

Soviet concessions might swing the balance between conflicting advice to the President.

Macmillan has long urged that a treaty with obvious loopholes is better than no treaty at all. Many top officials in the Pentagon and the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, on the other hand, consider that the continuation of nuclear weapons development is more important to U. S. security than any conceivable test ban control system.

Western officials are so pessimistic about the summit meeting in general that they believe progress toward a test ban treaty may be its only concrete achievement.

The Geneva negotiators have reached a substantial measure of agreement for a worldwide control and inspection system to police a ban on all nuclear tests above ground, in the atmosphere and under water and large tests underground.

No Formal Ban

Smaller underground tests would not be formally banned under the treaty. The exemption would apply to devices up to the power of the Hiroshima bomb, equivalent to about 20,000 tons of TNT.

President Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, French President Charles de Gaulle and Khrushchev open their talks Monday in search of means for rescuing civilization from the threat of disaster.

Grimed At First

For a time a little of the gloom seemed to be lifting as the summit leaders assembled in Paris.

Booyed by the news that his scientists had boosted a record weight 4½-ton space ship into orbit around the earth, Khrushchev was grinning and relaxed as he appeared for separate preference talks with De Gaulle and then Macmillan.

Eisenhower and Macmillan, arriving in Paris, issued brief speeches carefully moderated to avoid railing further the turbulent atmosphere resulting from the bitter Soviet-American exchanges over the U. S. spy plane incident.

Summit At A Glance

PARIS (AP)— Developments on the eve of the summit conference:

President Eisenhower said in an airport statement far too much is at stake to engage in pointless bickering. He said the West is ready to meet Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev half way in every honest effort to solve existing problems.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan told his well-wishers "Mankind cannot afford misunderstandings, suspicions, hostility." He expressed hope for a good start toward negotiated settlements of East-West problems.

Western leaders were reported agreed on the German problem after a meeting of Eisenhower, Macmillan, President Charles de Gaulle, and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Khrushchev met separately with De Gaulle and Macmillan. There still was no sign of a meeting between Eisenhower and the Soviet leader.

The Soviets orbited a 4½-ton space ship carrying a dummy astronaut; maintained blasts against U. S. pilot Francis G. Powers' U2 spy flight.

Pope John XXIII appealed for a just peace between nations in a message read at Cassino, Italy, before a meeting of veterans of the World War II Battle of Monte Cassino.

Hagerly told a news conference he knew of no approach for such a meeting from either side. When asked why meetings were arranged between Khrushchev and the other two leaders and not between the Russian and American, he replied:

"That is a question you would have to put to Mr. Khrushchev." He said De Gaulle, "of course," had filled in his Western colleagues on his talk with the Soviet Premier.

There still were high hopes that a conference-wrecking slugfest would be avoided.

One indication was a remark of a high-ranking Soviet spokesman to an American correspondent that "the atmosphere is normal. It is better than in Moscow."

Moscow at the moment is still busy extending its propaganda campaign over the spy plane incident.

West Meets

The stage-setting talks included, besides the Khrushchev-De Gaulle and Khrushchev-Macmillan meetings, a session of the three Western chiefs of government with Adenauer to discuss the subjects of divided Germany and threatened West Berlin. The four announced full agreement on these subjects in readiness for the summit.

After Adenauer departed for Bonn, the Big Three chiefs met again, this time taking up the subjects of disarmament and East-West relations.

None of the four leaders' spokesmen divulged much of what went on.

To reporters' questions, Hagerly responded, in effect, "You'll have to wait until tomorrow and see."

Khrush Irked By Absence Of Ike Bid

PARIS (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev was reported in a bad mood Sunday and a new wave of pessimism swept diplomatic quarters in Paris on the eve of the summit meeting of the world's great powers.

Dear Abby

Don't Talk So Silly

Dear Abby: You said in your column that you thought it was wrong for a fellow and a girl to kiss and make out in a show. I don't agree with you.

N o w a-days parents are too strict and old-fashioned. With the H-Bomb ready to go off in our faces any minute, we young people should get in all the fun and loving possible. It may be our last chance.

LIVE TODAY

Dear Live: That theory is as old as the "heels". The "live today — for tomorrow may never come" philosophy is dandy only if tomorrow doesn't come. So far, "tomorrow" has arrived on schedule every day without fail. Better think of another excuse.

Dear Abby: In a confidential message you attempted to give comfort to a reader who felt neglected and ignored. "Remember Whistler's Father," you said.

For your information you don't have to feel sorry for Whistler's father. He was Major George Washington Whistler, one of the greatest construction engineers of all time. He designed and built the Trans-Siberian Railway for the czar of Russia in 1843.

The old lady merely "sat". Sincerely yours, CASEY R.

Dear Abby: My father recently passed away after a lingering illness. We had the problem of explaining death to our little girl, who is eight. I told her in a nice way that Grandpa went to live with God in heaven. I explained that heaven is a beautiful place and we will all go there some day. I also told her that Grandpa was very sick and he is much happier where he is now. She accepted it and didn't cry, a bit.

My husband and the rest of his family seem so surprised that I told her these things. They keep telling her that Grandpa is "away" and will be back. If I am wrong, I'd like to know. If they are wrong, please tell them.

YOUNG MOTHER

Dear Mother: You are right. Children must be taught the facts of death (as well as life) and you explained it beautifully. It is foolish and unkind to tell a child that a person who has passed away will "be back". When the child learns the truth (as he surely will) he will lose confidence in the one who deceived him.

Dear Abby: Four years ago I gave birth to a child out of wedlock. I had to put my maiden name on his birth certificate. I have since married. Pretty soon my child will be going to school and I want him to carry his father's name. Can I have his name changed on his birth certificate, and if so, how, please?

NEED YOUR HELP

Dear Neel: Get in touch with your Department of Public Health and they will change it for you. There is no publicity or red tape in this type of name change and it costs about a dollar.

"What's your problem?" Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope in care of this paper.

We wish to commend everyone who had a part in catching the bank robbers. Most of them are unbelievably stupid but they are hard to bring in once they get running. It was an excellent job that was done.

The public should also realize more clearly that a bank is still the best and safest place for the deposit and safekeeping of funds. Everything a bank does is directed towards making certain that the depositor is not the loser. "Yes, I was Afraid of Father Drake!"

It was not physical fear, of course, that had kept Dave Smith from calling on the Catholic priest. Just timidity.

"I would have come sooner, Father," he said, "but I know so little about the Catholic Faith... and I hated to show my ignorance."

People like Dave Smith are beginning to call on Catholic priests more and more. Some of them know little or nothing about Catholicism. A few are quite well informed. Unfortunately, some others are possessed of a good deal of information concerning the Church... but it isn't correct.

Dave Smith, for example, thought the important things he had to learn had to do with prayer beads, medals, statues and what he called "fancy" ceremonies. He was surprised to hear that these are what the Church calls externals, and that they are significant only because of the profound truths behind them which are found in the Catholic Creed.

"All people," Father Drake told Dave, "need to understand the moral principles which Catholics are instructed to observe. These are the moral principles of the Ten Commandments which, when rightly applied, reach into every one's conscience as standards of right and wrong in everyday life."

As Father Drake talked on, Dave began to understand Christ's seven sacraments as an aid to Christian living and a preparation for eternal salvation. He began to realize that the Mass, in Catholic eyes, is not merely a religious ceremony but a true and holy sacrifice. If he had felt the need of Catholic instruction before he had entered the parish house, Dave felt the need to be greater and more urgent now.

There are lots of people in the same predicament as Dave Smith was. They want to learn more about the Catholic Faith, but hesitate to visit a priest. And some live in areas that are not convenient to a Catholic Church. If you are one of these, just fill in the coupon below and mail it in today. We will send you... without charge, and in a plain wrapper... an interesting pamphlet explaining the essentials of the Catholic Faith. It covers such important things as the Creed, the Commandments, the Sacraments, the Mass, the history of the Church and its world-wide organization. Don't hesitate to write... nobody will call on you. Just fill in the coupon—now! Ask for Pamphlet KC-50.

Meeting At Summit

An air of tenseness hangs over the world today as the chiefs of state of the Big Four powers meet in Paris for the opening of their summit conference.

Many problems, ranging from the Berlin situation to the question of policing the ban on nuclear explosions, faced the leaders when the summit talks were arranged. The spy plane incident has added another.

Some observers think that the U-2 case has eliminated any hope for bringing the East and West closer together in any of the areas of difference now separating the cold war adversaries.

There are others, however, who feel that the seizure of American flier Francis G. Powers deep inside Russia is only the culmination of a series of incidents and conditions in which the Soviet Union has been the culprit. These sources reason that negotiation of the differences should be easier now that the matter of espionage has come out in the open.

It would be a happy day in the realm of international relations if nations dealt with each other in all things in honesty and candor. But they don't.

Consequently, national survival has required that a nation keep itself as fully informed as possible concerning the designs of its neighbors. In the language of diplomacy, this is called espionage.

What the word really means is that nations spy upon each other. Russia spies on us—and buys our atomic and nuclear secrets whenever it can tempt an American to betray classified information.

And we spy on Russia. That's what Powers was doing some 1,400 miles inside the Soviet Union.

The misfortune of this episode is not the shooting down of an American plane, or the unmasking of an American spy. These were calculated risks.

The misfortune rests actually in our having pretended differently. We coaxed the world to think of Uncle Sam as a "good" guy. We portrayed first Stalin and now Khrushchev as "bad" buys.

We now have the spectacle of the "bad" guy gleefully knocking the halo off the head of the "good" guy.

It is a situation that threatens the confidence and unity of the free world. Yet it doesn't change the world situation in any important aspect.

Russia, with all its show of false holiness as it capitalizes on its new propaganda advantage, is still threatening world peace. The United States is still committed to defend it.

'No Thanks, I'll Choose My Own Outfit!'

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Vice Presidency

Both parties are going to have more than considerable difficulty selecting a vice president. Among the Democrats, those who do not favor Sen. John Kennedy for President would prefer a Johnson-Kennedy ticket depending upon which ever candidate for president is preferred.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York and Gov. Pat Brown of California are candidates for vice president in the event that Kennedy is not nominated.

The situation regarding the vice presidency in the Democratic Party is fluid and no particular person is favored.

What happens will depend upon who is nominated for the presidency; what part of the country he comes from; whether he is a conservative or a liberal and other considerations.

In the Republican Party, there are those who favor Nelson Rockefeller for Vice President on the assumption that he has a sufficient following to be important. There are some Republicans who believe that a Nixon-Rockefeller ticket could win.

On the other hand, there are Republicans who feel that Rockefeller is not a Republican, that he cannot really be associated with either party, but operates entirely on his own. They have observed him as Governor of New York State and are not over-enthusiastic.

The conservative Republicans want Senator Barry Goldwater to be chosen as Vice President and will put up a stiff fight for him. His following is growing because he is a man of sincerity. But it is generally held that Goldwater will not be nominated.

First of all, he comes from a small state; secondly, he is a Westerner like Nixon; thirdly, he is too far on the Right for Nixon who cannot altogether cut loose from the Eisenhower Administration of which he has been a part.

It would seem that the one man in the Republican Party who fits the cut for Vice President in 1960 is Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge. Coming from a leading New England family, he is a resident of New York. As Nixon comes from California, Lodge fits the requirement for an Easterner for Vice President.

He has had a long legislative experience, having served in the Massachusetts General Court, as the state legislature there is called. He has served in the United States Senate. He has been a newspaper reporter and has a good military record.

But his principal service to the country has been as the United States Ambassador to the United Nations and on the Security Council where he proved himself to be an excellent debater and diplomat, giving the Russians a hard time when necessary. He has withstood the attacks on the United States courageously and without compromise. His understanding of Russian techniques is better than most.

The Lodge family was brought up on the experience of governing. Henry Cabot Lodge's grandfather had a long and distinguished career in the United States Senate. His brother, John, was Governor of Connecticut and is now our Ambassador to Spain.

An excellent campaigner and a good mixer, Henry Cabot Lodge could be a valuable addition to Nixon's campaign.

Apart from Barry Goldwater and Henry Cabot Lodge, no names are seriously mentioned for the Vice Presidency on the Republican side. There has been some talk of Senator Kenneth Keating of New York, who is a good speaker and a humorist, but he is hardly known to the country.

No one ever runs for the Vice Presidency. Many who are candidates for the Presidency hope that they will be able to settle for second place. The Democratic contest is more lively and exciting than the Republican and therefore there are more prospects for the Vice Presidency.

In the Republican Party, one of the major difficulties is that few men are willing to give up governorships or seats in the Senate for banging the gavel in the Senate with a comparatively young President who, according to the averages, is likely to outlive two terms.

On the other hand, several members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet are of Vice Presidential proportions. Fred Seaton, Secretary of the Interior, and James Mitchell, Secretary of Labor, have often been mentioned in this connection.

Both are prospects and possibilities although Mitchell seemed to be in disfavor with Nixon on occasion. Seaton comes from Nebraska, is a newspaper owner and very personable.

This then is the line-up for the second place on both tickets. The choice will be picked as is customary, by the candidate for President.

The Allen-Scott Report

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Russia may have the chance to exchange its convicted spy, Colonel Rudolf Ivanovich Abel for pilot Francis Powers.

The National Security Council, top policy-making agency over which President Eisenhower presides personally, has authorized the "initiating of preliminary overtures" through diplomatic channels to explore this possibility.

Immediate purpose of these inquiries is to ascertain whether the Soviet would consider releasing Powers, and on what terms.

This action was taken by the Security Council following extensive discussion of the matter at a State Department meeting attended by officials of the Justice Department and Central Intelligence Agency.

The idea of a Powers-Abel swap originated in the State Department.

Basis for the proposal was a Russian flier last September about securing Abel's release.

The State Department was sounded out on this by the ambassador of a European satellite. While carefully discreet and proper, he left no doubt he was speaking at the instigation of the Kremlin.

This undercover move got nowhere.

At that time, Abel's appeal as a convicted foreign spy was pending before the Supreme Court. State Department officials pointed out to the Iron Curtain diplomat that until the Court disposed of the case, the government could do nothing even if it wanted to— which it emphatically did not.

Now the situation is very different, and in State Department quarters it is deemed possible the Soviet's circuitous effort nine months ago in Abel's behalf may be the opening to aid Powers.

After considering this possibility at length, the Security Council approved steps being taken to determine what can be done about it.

President Eisenhower may have the opportunity to do something about it himself.

That's what Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson cabled from Moscow before the President departed for the summit conference.

Thompson reported the Foreign Office had informed him that Premier Khrushchev is personally handling Powers' case, and intends to discuss it with the President in Paris.

Abel was convicted for espionage in 1957, and sentenced to 30 years. He is now at the federal penitentiary in Atlanta. He will be eligible for parole in April 1968, but could be released by presidential order.

During Abel's trial, the FBI produced evidence that he was a Colonel in Russian Intelligence, and characterized him as the highest-ranking spy ever apprehended in the U.S.

The Supreme Court upheld his conviction, in March of this year, by a five to four vote. Abel's attorneys have petitioned for a rehearing. The odds are against that being granted.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover told the House Appropriations Committee at a private meeting earlier this year, that more than 100 "Communist espionage agents" are now under surveillance.

"These spy operations are the boldest in years," declared Hoover.

Foreign Flashes — President Eisenhower flew to the summit conference with no idea how long it may last. That's what he told congressional leaders several days before leaving for Paris. The President stated that separate efforts by the U.S., British and French to obtain a time limit from Premier Khrushchev have proved unavailing. Related the President, "We proposed that these discussions be concluded in three weeks. De Gaulle supported that, and Macmillan was willing to go along. But Khrushchev insisted on leaving everything wide open. Macmillan is still trying to work out an understanding, but is apparently getting nowhere."

Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov is again dropping hints he will leave Washington soon. He has indicated this to other foreign diplomats in the Capital. Menshikov also indicated his most likely successor is Yuri Zhukov, a strong Khrushchev partisan, and head of the Commission on Cultural Relations. Zhukov speaks English and has visited the U.S. on a number of occasions.

The most vital task of Communist agents is adding to Moscow's mountainous stockpile of information about potential enemy nations. The information is political, economic, psychological as well as military. Every scrap of information is important—it may provide the missing fragment in a jigsaw. Business reports issued by companies, economic reports issued by the government, the statements of our leaders and editorialists—all are forwarded to Moscow. There they are systematically analyzed by corps of political, economic and military experts—and even psychiatrists.

Disappearing Landlubbers

No cartoonist ever pictured the American image as that of the modern mariner, but if present activities continue, skimming across the water will rival auto touring in popularity. There are now more than 8 million pleasure boats within U.S. boundaries, a fourfold increase since World War II. By 1970, it is estimated, there will be 12 million.

Taking to the water has been a natural pastime at seashore resorts for many years, but the contemporary skipper frequently does not go down to the sea. He brings it to him. Man-made lakes are springing up like oases—which is what they are—particularly in the Middle West and in Southern states.

Boating is a healthful sport, although replacement of sails by motors has reduced physical benefits. It answers the need of many people to get away from it all, to disentangle themselves from the many frustrations and irritations of congested city life.

It presents a wonderful opportunity for family participation—an important point in an era when family ties are strained by the many diverse activities beckoning to each member.

People once wondered what they would do with their time if they didn't spend it working. Modern society is providing the answers. Not all of us have learned how to spend leisure hours, but a growing attraction of golf, bowling boating and similar activities is reducing the effectiveness of negative distraction.

The Pennsylvania Story

Calm May Not Last

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — The comparative calm that has gracefully settled over the Lawrence Administration since its assumption of office little more than a year ago is expected to come to an abrupt halt within the space of the next few months.

Indications are growing that anti-administration Republicans who control the State Senate and the two fiscal offices of State Auditor General and State Treasurer are preparing to "lower the boom" on the Democratic Lawrence Administration ere the fall elections come and go.

With a presidential election year on the agenda for a wind-up within the next half dozen months, the outcome of the November election will also determine such critical items as whether Republicans will continue to control the State Senate and the two fiscal offices—plus the possibility of snatching control of the now Democratic administration-dominated House of Representatives.

Under the circumstances it is not likely that currently down-at-the-mouth Pennsylvania Republicans will leave any stones unturned in a determined effort to seat their colleagues on the other side of the fence.

When the Legislature returns June 6 following its five-month recess, it is expected the tempo of operations for Keystone State partisans will pick-up considerably.

In fact it is generally conceded now that this was one of the primary moves behind the insistence by anti-administration Republican lawmakers that the 1960 Legislature go into recess rather than final adjournment as supported vigorously and bitterly by administration Democrats back in January.

It is significant now that as Pennsylvania heads into the election campaign period, the Legislature is still "in being." The question oftentimes has been asked as to why Republicans have been so "quiet" since Mr. Lawrence and his Democratic colleagues took over the reins of office on Capitol Hill little more than a year ago.

The answer is expected to be forthcoming following the Legislature's return next month.

Embattled Democrats have been idle during this period. They have been quietly working through records of the host of departments under control of the administration, and as one top strategist phrased it "holding our fire until the proper time."

It can be expected when lawmakers return to their desks next month that there will be a host of demands for explanations from the administration—demands from legislative Republicans who, with their singular control of the upper chamber of the legislative branch, can make their demands stick.

A petition for the impeachment of the Democratic District Attorney of Philadelphia for allegedly failing to act in the vote fraud case in that city, already has been filed with the House of Representatives by a Philadelphia Republican lawmaker.

Republican lawmakers have been talking quietly of initiating a legislative investigation of frauds not only in that city but also Lackawanna County—both areas of which are heavy Democratic strongholds.

Fiscal policies of the Democratic Lawrence Administration are expected to come under extremely heavy probing and scrutiny from partisan Republicans—again especially in the Senate where the GOP rules supreme.

Pennsylvania's Legislature is not expected to sit idle after next month.

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

Cross off another folk tale children have been taught for generations. The owl may be old but he definitely is not wise. Biologist Roger Payne, after exhaustive experiments at Cornell, announced without qualification, "The owl is one of the dumbest animals around. He's even dumber than a chicken, if that is possible." Owls he's studied, continued Dr. Payne, didn't have sense enough to walk around an obstruction the opposite way when their path were blocked, and usually hit the very hands that fed them.

Payne conceded that owls have extraordinarily sensitive ears, but that's about all. They are guided to the mice they're chasing in the dark purely by sound.

So there go the wise old owls. What will they be debunking next?

An indignant customer returned for credit to his bookstore a copy of "The Romance of Cattle Raising." "This book," he complained, "is all about cattle raising. There's not a word of romance in it."

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Old Granny Poconos—old as the hills—that's the way I was feeling after a whole day of watching the youth and beauty contending for the title of Miss Pocono Mountains.

Each year I think I won't get involved, but each year I end up holding my breath waiting for the judges' decision, as anxious for each of them as if they were my own. Certainly with their assets, they don't need my sympathy, but somehow it gets involved.

Perhaps it's when I first meet them at 10:30 in the morning with every hair in place, every seam straight, and costume obviously chosen with great care as to suitability and with or against the advice of parents, friends, boy friends.

Perhaps it's during lunch when you can look across the dining room, filled with relaxed people on a holiday, to see the contestants having lunch with the judges, sitting at just the proper angle, fork held just so, and even chewing a problem when you are trying to hold up your end of the table conversation.

Certainly, that long walk down the carpet in a swim suit to face not only the judges but guests and sponsors as well, is no place for knees that are inclined to wobble. And somewhere along the way as the day wears on, they cease to be contestants and become people—each one with some endearing trait, each one with something that delights the beholder.

You can't help comparing and forming your own judgments which may or may not agree with those of the judges, and which is what makes the pageant a little different from any other entertainment—but by the time it's all over you may sympathize but you don't feel sorry for a single one. With what they've got, they don't need a title or a crown.

And dimly I can see why like Miller goes on promoting the pageant, sometimes almost single handed and against odds that would have the rest of us throwing in the sponge. And if she needed any further courage, all she had to do was look at the reunion of the past Miss Pocono Mountains. We can certainly be proud of them all.

The Wyckoff Shopper

AB Wyckoff
"the friendly store"

"That isn't your picture in today's column," my Mother commented Friday as I ate my breakfast. "It says 'Miss Laura McCarty and the Wyckoff Shopper,' but that isn't you."

I looked at Mom and wondered what had come over her. "Of course it is," I said rather emphatically. "Don't you remember, Mother—I showed you the picture right after Mr. Widmer took it?"

Mother could not be swayed. "I never saw that picture before," she stated flatly, in a tone that more or less closed the discussion, and we began talking about Russia. That subject seemed safer.

Then . . . as I walked into WVPO . . . Natalie Eschenbach and Chet Miller remarked what a flattering picture it was of me in my column. IT WAS TOO — I've never looked so good in my life. (This, you see, was the first time Rhoda Weitzman ever posed for MY picture . . . and if a gal wants a standin', there's none around any lovelier.)

It was an understandable mistake from at least one standpoint, however. I had sent two pictures to the newspaper . . . the one printed and another . . . each stapled to a column. But somehow they became confused in the steps that transform a paper print into a piece of plastic that will reproduce. I am glad that, since it happened, it happened the way it did. Laura McCarty and I might have ended up REALLY in the soup, with our names under a picture of 300-pound "Little Betty" and a two-headed Ubangi advertising the circus!

I have noticed the past several days how radiant and smooth Esther Ainspac's complexion is. Esther has always been most attractive, but I realized that in some way she had changed her appearance most flatteringly. Today I learned her secret when she showed me the newly arrived DORY Beauty Masks by DuBarry. These are rather expensive, but a justifiable expenditure when one sees what they can do for a woman. Each box, priced at 7.50 plus tax, contains six treatments in gold foil envelopes. One must mix the powder with a half measuring cup of water, stir vigorously for one minute, apply quickly and allow the mask to remain on the face and throat for ten minutes. Made from marine algae from the Adriatic sea, the mix becomes elastic in a very short time. It tightens the sagging muscles, and, when the treatment is complete, it can be stripped from the face in an almost solid piece. With it comes all the accumulated dead skin . . . the complexion is fresher, younger looking, cool, and glamorous. As one woman says, "I could have gone all day without makeup and still looked good."

Esther verifies this. "Around the house after trying it I used only a touch of lipstick, and it was all the makeup I needed. I surprised myself."

It is recommended that the initial treatments be given three times a week . . . later once a week is sufficient. I myself have not tried the mask, but after seeing Esther's complexion, I most certainly recommend them. Unless I miss my bet, every woman with a dull, tired skin (or a dull, tired outlook) will do herself a favor to become a "mix masker"—and soon!

BETTER HEARING MONTH is a good time to point-up the Miracle of Hearing—Diagram of the mechanism of the human ear illustrating how sounds are conducted to the brain—where they are transmitted into symbols of thought.

Different Functions Of Human Ear Are Told

IN HONOR of May being Better Hearing Month, Mrs. Marguerite J. Greinert, certified hearing aid audiologist and authorized distributor for Audiovox Hearing Aids in the area, presents the following article designed to help the public understand the different functions of the human ear.

The human ear is made up of an eardrum and a series of canals and chambers. The ear collects sound waves and carries them to an extremely delicate mechanism which carries the sounds to the brain where they are translated into symbols of thought. The human brain can analyze the nerve impulses of nearly a half million different sounds! When you examine how the ear works, and realize how complex an organ it is, you can readily understand how easily its functions can become impaired.

Although the ear is capable of adapting itself to great extremes, such as the sound of a clock five feet away or the shock of the loudest crack of thunder without damage, it is such a delicate instrument that nature has placed it well within the protective shell of the skull. The portion of the ear which is visible to us is only a part of the complete ear.

The part of the ear we see is called the auricle. It gathers sound vibrations like a funnel and directs them through the auditory canal to the eardrum. The auditory canal is actually an air conditioner to protect the middle and inner ear against temperature changes. A screen of hairs at the canal entrance filters out the dust.

Mrs. Greinert explains that the eardrum stretches across the inner end of the auditory canal. This membrane is so sensitive to sound that it can detect them below the lowest note on the bass drum or notes more than twice as high as the highest note on a violin.

On the inner side of the eardrum is a small spherical air chamber called the Middle Ear. Across this chamber extends a tiny bridge of three bones, the Hammer, the Anvil and the Stirrup, which are linked together end-to-end. These bones pick up sound vibrations as they strike the eardrum, and transmit them from the outer to the inner ear.

Mrs. Greinert goes on to say that if anything happens to prevent this tiny chain of bones from vibrating freely, sound impulses are stopped here, cannot reach the inner ear, and hearing is impaired.

The inner ear is a chamber filled with liquid, and containing a spiral called the "cochlea."

The cochlea is lined with thousands of microscopic, hair-like projections, from which nerve impulses are transmitted to the brain. The liquid in the inner ear acts like a hydraulic system, and carries the sound vibrations from the middle ear to these tiny hair cells.

The cochlea, if uncoiled from its two-and-one-half turns, would be no longer than an ordinary sewing needle, however on its surface there are over 25,000 hair cells. The cells at one end respond to notes far below the piano keyboard and the cells at the base of the spiral respond to the very high notes.

When all these tiny nerve cells are young and active, they respond to approximately 1500 individual tones, the perfect ear can detect almost a half million different sound impressions.

Is it any wonder that such a marvelous and sensitive organ is subject to the effects of age, damage or disease?

In the event that a child seems to have a hearing impairment, Mrs. Greinert advises the parents to consult a physician immediately, as he is the only one qualified to determine the extent of the impairment, if any.

Today if a doctor has the opportunity to detect a hearing loss in a child, many times much can be done to prevent further impairment, either by treatment, surgery, etc.

The purchase of a Hearing Aid for the child should be the last resort and then only on the advice of the physician.

All appointments are personally handled by Mrs. Greinert, who is an owner-distributor and employs no consultants. Mrs. Greinert is available for a free hearing test at anytime right in your own home without charge or obligation. Anyone interested may contact Mrs. Greinert at her Bushkill offices by simply phoning LUther 8-6718 collect, or Hamilton 1-0450 or dropping a card to Mrs. Marguerite J. Greinert, P.O. Box 196, Bushkill, Pa.

Mrs. Greinert may also be contacted at Bud's Men's Apparel Shop, 760 Main St., Stroudsburg every Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or any other day by appointment. Cords, Batteries and accessories for all makes of aids can be obtained at Bud's everyday in the week.

Mrs. Greinert also repairs all makes of hearing aids and makes custom made earmolds.

Morman Notes Difference New Floor Covering Makes

EVER NOTICE what a new hat does for a woman? Of course, it gives her a lift and makes her feel grand when she gets dressed up. Keep in mind, though, the fact that she must spend much of her time in the home, cleaning, washing, preparing meals etc.

What a difference new linoleum, vinyl flooring or one of the many other types of resilient flooring can make. Not just a difference in the maintenance and cleaning in the home.

L. V. Morman and staff of experienced technicians can help you in planning and achieving whatever effect you might wish for in a floor. Floors can make your room look larger, smaller, ceilings taller or closer. Color can give a room a look of cool relaxation or can make it warm and vibrant.

Wide Choice
In wall tile, too, let L. V. Morman transform that kitchen or bath. The selection is endless . . . choose from plastic or ceramic tile, regular size or large king size tiles.

One of the types of tile popular around a kitchen area is the new stainless steel or copper-tone tile. Ideal around cooking areas, sinks and worktops, the tile is washable, durable and retains its original beauty year after year.

L. V. Morman is the oldest established floorcovering dealer with well over 39 years of experience in the field. Morman also maintains the largest and most varied stock in the area. Visit L.

V. Morman at 326 Main St., in Stroudsburg or . . . phone HA 1-4411, should you wish them.

D. Katz Has Accessories For Pools

THE OLE swimmin' hole is not quite the same as it used to be. The modern homeowner is enjoying the fun of swimming by walking outside to the comfort of his own filtered swimming pool. Modern methods of construction have put the home pool within reach of many people and the ranks are increasing each year, with the decrease in cost.

The folks at D. Katz Sons are specialists in construction and maintenance of pools and their equipment. They are also backed by the experience of the Jacuzzi Pump people who have given much serious consideration to the problems of supply and maintenance of pool facilities.

Of extreme importance in this is your choice of filtering equipment. Of the types available, Jacuzzi's sand-type filter system is best and features a newly engineered five-way selector valve and Jacuzzi's famous selfpriming pump with integral pump strainer.

Also in the Jacuzzi equipment line are pool ladders, vacuum cleaners, diving boards, leaf skimmers, brushes and fittings.

If you're talking that exciting step and are about to look into having a swimming pool constructed you would do well to call HA 1-1464.

Life In Danger

MUNICH (AP) — Moulay Merbah, secretary general of the Algerian nationalist movement, has left West Germany after being told by police his safety could no longer be guaranteed. He moved to Austria. Threats of assassination had been made against him here, authorities said.

Social Studies Classes Lose Money In Corporate Structure Experiment

AN experiment in the corporate structure and operations of business has been carried out by the senior students in social studies at Stroud Union High School during the past year.

Purchasing a share of stock in Resistoflex Corp. at a price of 29½ points per share — equal to $29.12½ — the group has, until now, lost money on the stock since it is presently quoted at 22½ or $22.25.

The class instructor, Ira M. Nagler, then wrote to the firm asking for samples of the firm's products. About $200 in samples was sent to the class for examination.

The samples were then tested and examined by the chemistry and industrial arts departments.

The commercial dept. of the school examined the financial statement of the firm.

The samples are now on display at the high school.

Canadensis Pastor Elected President Of Ministerium

TOBYHANNA — The final meeting of the fiscal year of the Monroe County Ministerium, was held at the Tobyhanna Signal Depot Chapel, where the members were guests of Chaplain Francis P. Patterson.

Rev. Robert Zuch, president, led the group in devotions after which the committees which have functioned throughout the past year gave their reports.

Posters were distributed to the pastors listing the church services of all of the Monroe County Protestant and Jewish houses of worship, to be placed throughout the entire county for the convenience of the tourists which come to the Poconos.

Greeted By Officers
Words of welcome were given to the group at the luncheon which followed by Col. Lester Kale and Lt. Col. Edward E. Moran. The nominating committee gave its report for the coming year which begins in September.

Nominated and elected to office were Rev. Charles Eichman, Moravian Church, Canadensis, as president; Rev. Joseph Carr, United Church of Christ, Stroudsburg, as vice president; Rev. David A. Blattner, Assemblies of God, Mount Pocono, as secretary-treasurer.

The meeting adjourned after which the ministers were given a guided tour through the Signal Depot.

Report Erroneous

HAVANA (AP) — The Restaurant and Hotel Workers Union denied Sunday it had asked that U.S. Ambassador Philip Bonsal be declared unwelcome. Officials said such a proposal was made from the floor during a union meeting but was not acted upon and that an erroneous report reached the press.

Woman's Right To Slug Man

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia supports the historic right of an insulted woman to slap a man. In reporting the case of a woman factory worker who slapped a comrade in an argument, it said that "even if our statement goes counter to Christian morals, nevertheless with all responsibility we say an insulted woman has the right to administer a slap. Moreover, she should."

Italy Gives Cost Report

ROME (AP) — The Italian government has announced some good and some bad news.

The good: A tax cut will permit gasoline prices to be reduced from about 80 cents a gallon to 64 cents.

The bad: Postage rates for letters circulated in Italy will be raised from the equivalent of about 4 cents to about 5 cents.

Speed Limit Set

LONDON (AP) — Transport Minister Ernest Marples has ordered a 50-mile-an-hour speed limit during the Whitsun weekend on many highways where motorists normally can drive as fast as they like. It was prompted by a heavy accident toll over Easter weekend.

DOES it seem to slip through your fingers? Make you wonder if prices must sky-rocket? Many others wonder too. Just recently 64 of them—all leading representatives of labor, education, business and government—got together at the American Assembly. They considered the evidence and came away convinced that America can experience dynamic growth while keeping prices reasonably stable and unemployment low. How? By a serious effort on the part of all Americans to create a steady rise in productivity.
